Dear Parents,

As educators, we learn from fellow educators, sharing their moments of inspiration about the teaching-learning process in school, and they in-turn are inspired by what we do at SVM as part of the Be More vision. One way to connect all of us is social media! It's instant and real time information is updated especially best practices.

As you are aware, we have a school Facebook page (@sarvankashvidyamandir) and an Instagram page where we regularly update blogs, DIY activities, quotes, articles, e-resources for you to engage with children at home, news about school happenings (especially what happens behind the scenes) and our most precious moments are showcasing our children's originality and creativity.

Yesterday, we went Live on our Face Book page for the first time and got the SVM community of teachers, parents and students to join in and celebrate music. Children explained what music means to them, their inspiration and what genres they enjoy and the science behind the music. Their melodious vocals and instrument playing had so many from across the globe tune in - and the words of encouragement will go a long way in motivating these children.

Please follow us, if you are not already and celebrate with us this community spirit that makes SVM. Social media is our way of bringing families together, and celebrating everything that our children learn.

Our children are live again on Saturday at 6pm as part of SVM Insync, so join us and play along!

Yours truly,
Monica Jaiswal
